BATTLE OF THE MEDWAY.

Six-Inch Guns Used To Sink a Blazing Coal-Hulk.

While the payal might of Britain and its roll of fame continue in the pages of the world's history, so long will the glorious deeds performed by H.M.S. Bustard at the battle of the Medway, says the Daily Mirror, send a thrill of admiration tingling through the veins of those . who

A foe-an awful, blazing foe-appeared on the waters of the Medway, threatening destruction far and wide. Every available force was opposed to her with no success, and all seemed lost. Then the Bustard engaged her, and after prolonged and fierce fighting gained a splended victory.

Not since the days of the second Charles, when the inviolability of our home waters was invaded by De Ruyter, has hostile ship of war appeared in the Medway. The insult, repeated after a lapse of centuries, was magnificently avenged by the Bustard. The morning over the Thames month broke dirty and drizzly. It was an ugly dawn, in keeping with the horror that was Off the quays of Port Victoria, in Sheppey Isle, lay a vessed that has hitherto been peace loving, generally known as the coal-hulk Forte. In distant days this ship was a frigate. Before she became a receiving boat for supernumeraries, and then a coal hulk, she had been a flagship on a foreign station.

Possibly it was the memory of the martin long ago and sudden-born greed for glory. hat caused her, without either rhyme or reason, to turn on her native country.

On board she had 2,400 tons of coal, andthus equipped she burst into a bleze just about breakfast time.

The very existence of Port Victoria as a town straightway hung in the balance. A flery fete overflung the adjacent shipping. The conflagration was so huge that it was feared that the great preenal of Chatham, many miles distant up the river, might be involved in the general destruction, The flames shot hundreds of feet high, IN TWEEDS, HOMESPUNS, SERGES and cast a lurid glare from the hills of Kent to the swamps of Essex.

Boldly the men of naval fire parties, hastily got together, advanced to attack the enemy. But they fell away, scorched off by the colossal furnace. The little craft Hours of Business: 8 A.M. TO 6 P.M. that bore their bose could get nowhere 1474 within hose range.

Then there was a cry: "The mines! The mines !"

MOUTRIE & Co., Ld. Two of these terrible or gines of destruction were hurled against the foo. They were sent on their fearful mission by boats from the battleship Resolution. Nover had the men of that ship been more resolute. But the mines exploded resultless, baffled PIANO AND ORGAN by the coal packed sides of the flaming

It was about this time that despair began to seize the minds of the beholders. But suddenly a low, dark form appeared in the offing. It was the Bustard to the rescue. From Sheerness she came steaming, this plucky gunboat, her decks cleared for action, her men at quarters, and her 6-in.

guns trimmed for the fray. In her conning tower her captain calmly surveyed the confisgration. The crisis had gun discharge. Boom ! Boom ! Boom ! Boom ! Boom ! Boom ! Time after time her 6-in, gans thundered

On the quays terrified and huddled crowds watched the life and death struggle breathless. Would the Forte never go down? Were the efforts of the undaunted Bustard to be as fruitless as those of the hose and the mines? For a space of time that seemed hours. the Bustard boomed away. Then, of a sudden, a mighty cheer went up. The Forte was seen to he heeling over slowly, and still blazing defiance. Then there was hissing, horrible splash. The flery leviathan had gone to the bottom. The 6-in, guns of the Bustard had con-

THE PLACUE IN BURYA.

A Meiktila correspondent writes to a contemporary :- This disease claims a victim here and a victim there daily. We now have a plague doctor, Lieutenant C. Rutherford, I. M. S. Bombay, who, though he personally carries out a house-to-house inspection in town, has not yet found a single plague patient, for the simple reason that the masses combine to suppress evidence in this matter, so much so that the first intimation received of a fresh fatal case is when the carpenters assemble in front of the dead man's house to make his coffin. The people are not exactly panicstriken, but a feeling of despair is creeping over them and those who could have left the place are sorry. Those who have to remain on are morese and silent, and in their trepldation, send for the undertaker long before the breath is out of the body of their dearest and nearest. Such savages do we become when grim death knocks.

THE NIAGARA FALLS.

Encroachments of Commercialism,

Negotiations between the Canadian and United Government are now beginning with a view to the preservation of Niagara Falls by international action. Whether it will prove legal and feasible for the two general governments to supersede, as is 'now suggested, the local jurisdiction of the State of New York and the Province of Ontario, remains to be seen; but it may be true that this form of control would be a better safeguard against further encroachments. The gravity of the present menace can hardly be too often emphasized. As Dr John M. Clarke, the State Geologiet, wrote last spring: "The American and three Canadian companies now in operation or about to operate, when producing to their charter limits, will abstract 48,000 cubic feet per second. That amount will bring the water level to the bottom of the river at the American shore." Hence the recommendation of the International Waterways Commission, a fortnight ago, was that steps be taken to prevent any corporate rights or franchises being granted or renewed by either Federal, State, or provincial authority . . . until this Commission is able to collect, the information necessary to report fully upon the conditions and uses of these waters." The request for such a practical truce between the friends of the Falls and the business interests socking to exploit them cannot well be refused.

MANY excellent people consider that the inculcation and encouragement of a sentiment of Imperialism is tantamount to stimulating a spirit of aggression. They understand by Imperialism a policy like that of the bellicose Trishman who trailed his coat in the dust behind him in the fierce hope that someone would tread upon it. Of course true Imperialism teaches nothing of the kind. In its, best sense Imperialism is a unification of the sentiment of the component parts of an Empire. And the true Imperialist does not seek to WINE & SPIRIT MERCHANTS. make that sentiment one which would endanger the security or weal of other What is sought is to inspire our peoples who, under various forms of government, are working out the destinies of British race in every part of the globe, with common ideals. It is sought to direct the higher administration into the channels whence it will most refresh and revivify the whole Empire. Though British dependencies and colonies may safely be left to grapple with domestic problems the Imperialist holds that where the wenl of the race as an entity sis concerned there should be unity of effort. The allegations of Jingoism so wildly hurled around by the Little Englander type of politician-anti-Britishers they might be more exactly called—are probably brought into being as a consequence of their authors' inability to discern any difference in mean ing between offence and defence. It is sadly true that the nations of the world have not proceeded far enough on the path of evolution to agree to mutually halt and relieve their shoulders of the immense weight of arms and armour Safeguarding its integrity in no way our contemporary:involves interference with the rights of our neighbours. PRACTICAL CHINESE REFORM

The New Woman.

In Canton a certain man 'named Tung, scording to arrangements made long before, through the forethought of hisparents, secured a prospective bride, and as the time when "he should go forth to meet the bride " drew near, he set his house in order, and his heart in disorder. Meanwhile one day a young and attractive maiden outcred his shop and asked to see the master, who was Mr Tung, and, though betrothed to the maiden, did not know her. The preliminaries of etiquette and politeness having been honoured, the maiden, with blushing face, asked "Areyou the gentleman who is to marry Miss-So-and So?" On receiving an affirmativeroply she added "I am she,"

The would-be bridegroom was delighted to look upon such an apparition of beauty, but his joy was soon clouded. The maiden continued. " If I allow you to marry me, and to lead me over the threshold of the door will you promise to reward me with $50 per month for serving your father and mother?" Tung was taken aback at thistinuation of his tariff campaign, spoke request so contrary to the traditions of his country, and the ideals he had cherished. But the lady who seemed to understand that "compromise was the soul of progress," next made a proposal from which she would-not-retreat one-inch..... 'If you won't settle that sum on me, accompany me tothe home of my parents, and enter into a bond with them to pay them this sum, Why should I serve your parents for nothing 14 By this time a crowd had gathered and filled the street who, according to Chinese privilege, proffered their advice which amounted to this :- "The arrangements of marriage are in the hands of one's parents. Although the Chinese are anxious to accept European ways, and conform to the West, and are beginning to understand and appreciate the blessings of liberty, they cannot all at once free themselves from their ancient fetters. Canton, January 3. Since Chan Wai Hing submitted his scheme of the proposed railway from Kongmun to Tansuihow, the Vicercy has ordered the Sin Hau Kuk to make investigations and report on the advisability or otherwise of granting the concession. In his rescript to the Sin Hau Kuk, His Excellency said that the proposed line was to start from Pak Kai How, (Kongmun), to Tansuihow. The convenience afforded by this line would be for the transportation of merchandise and passengers and the terminus would, therefore, be in a popular business centre. The French are said to have found the true secret of art. Their elegance is always combined with usefulness. An exhibition was recently given in the Galliera Museum. It showed the artistic skill that is bestowed by French workmen on utenalls. In the powter work stand was the figure of a monk, of about a foot in height, his smoothlyfinished and polished draperies hanging straight folds to his feet. On his head there was a ring, evidently to pick him up by, and beneath his chin a small crack was apparent, seeming to indicate that his head could be unsurewed. No English or American person could guess what he was meant for. It was a hot-water bottle. Only a French artist could have produced anything at once so witty and so elegant It was perfectly adapted to the object it was intended to serve. This is the quality which characterises the best Parisian work.

Hint for Amateurs.

"Tell me, dear," says the soubrette, as she rushes at the dressing-room glass; and dabs a little more make-up on her already too-pink cheeks, "How do I look from the front? Is my cap all right? Ought it to be more off my face? So. Gracious. there's the curtain bell, and I don't know word of my next scene. Just hear me my lines, there's a dear." And, throwing hastily at you a crumbled type-written sheet with about sixteen lines on it, the soubrette gabbles away as she once mere

To the amateur soubrette, the set of her cap is of more importance than the sale of seats is to the management. Just how she will look " from the front" is the aim and object of her theatrical existence. Also, she is imburd with the sense of her own childish lore, are also on these squares, and at her feet. The serious way in which some BURLINGTON' beg to announce they our girls are taking up amateur then ricals is a sign that the stage-struck damsels are deeply in earnest. They learn everything about their subject, take lessons in singing, elecution, history of the drams, deportment, and denoing, and, in the end, they are very often rather like old Gorgon Graham's University student, who was very learned about glaciers, and had studied the terpsichorean art from its first development, and yet couldn't write a simple account of the accmen's ball. These amateur Juliets and Porties are working hard, and are smiled upon by managers because they call themselves students, and profess humbly that what they don't know about acting would fill a large volume, but when the leading lady of the "Suburban Thespians," or some other amateur organisation, does get s "real" engagement, it is generally a think ing part to start with, or one of those tiny roles where all that is required is a housemaid's unif rm and a feather duster. In dressing the part, the amateur is usually too conscientious. Instead of merely wearing things that look what they profess to be, she carefully buys the actual silks and satins and laces in the true spirit of Vincent Crummle's, and his "real pump and tubs." But all stage effect is mere sham and delusion. Things are never what they seem in stageland, and the expensive frock of the amateur society lady, Mrs. Erlynne, or Lady Teszle, or Minnie Gilfillan often lails to impress the audience as an authentic work of art. Like the acting, doesn't get itself across the footlights. And yet the dressing is always the most; important part of a drawingroom comedy. A pretty society girl was playing quite lately in a dressy Her gown was of richest rose pink Duchesse satin; her lace bertha "real:" her satin shoes probably cost her about 25s; and her silken hose nearly as much : real diamond combs glistened in overestimated. At a matter of fact Chinese to look twice before you know she was propared to receive up to the 16th inst. behind the footlights. A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

This is the age of research and experiment, where all nature, so to speak, larans acked by the relentific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides during the past century, and among the—by no menus least important—discoveries in medicine comes that of Therapion, particulars of which will be found in another column. This preparation is unquestionably one of the most genuine and reliable Patent Medicines ever introduced, and has, we understand, been used in the Continental Hospitals by Ricord, Rostan, Jobert, Velpeau, Malsonneuve, the well-known Chassaignac, and indeed by all those who are regarded as authorities in such matters, including the celebrated Lallemond, and Roux, by whom a was some time since uniformly adopted, and that it is worthy the attention of those who requires uch a remedy we think there is no doubt. From the time of Aristotic downwards, a potent agent in the removal of these diseases has (like the famed philosopher's stone) been the object of search of some hopeful; generous minds; and far beyond the mere power—if such couldever have been discovered—of transmuting the baser metals into gold is surely the discovery of a remedy so potent as to replenish the failing energies of the comfirmed rous in the one case, and in the other so effectually, speedily are failed to arms! from the system without the the failing energies of the combined sout in the one case, and in the other so effectually, speedily and safely to expel from the system without the sid, or even the knowledge, of a second party, the poisons of acquired or inherited diseasolus. It help protean forms as to leave no taint or trace behind. Such is The New French Remedy Therapion, which may certainly tank with, if not take precedence of many of the discoveries of our day, about which no little, osientation and noise have been made, and the extensive and ever increasing demand that has been created for this medicine wherever introduced appears to trave that it is destined to cast has been created for this medicine wherever intro-duced appears to prove that it is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of midical men, Therapion may be obtained in England, direct from the proprietor, and of the principal Chemists and Merchants throughout the Colonies, India, China, Japan, &c., not even excluding such remote districts as Central Africs, the Pill Islands, St. Holens, &c.—Diamens Fields Advisting Englands
